Alma Mater

Alma Mater, to you we will ever be true.
Our deeds shall bring honor and fame.
A place in our memory we now give to you,
For we love and we cherish your name.
Throughout all the years,
Our dear old Troy High,
We will work for the purple and gold.
May your glorious colors be ever held high,
And your honors increased many fold.

Hazel Binck Champine '20

Don't walk in front of me;
I may not follow.
Don't walk behind me;
I may not lead.
Just walk beside me, and be my friend.

DEDICATION

What can we say to a man who has been a class advisor since 1958? How can we thank a man who has helped us with magazine drives, ads, proms, class night, senior banquet and graduation? How can we show our appreciation to a man who has guided literally thousands of Troy High students through twenty-five years of history and shown them the merits of co-operation, guidance, friendship and fine teaching? There is just one way and we, the graduating class of 1978, are honored to dedicate this DARDANIAN to you, Mr. Wilfred Lagoe, with our deepest appreciation and thanks.

Board of Education

Forming school policy for the Enlarged City School District of Troy, the School Board plays an important role in the education of a Troy High student. They decide on issues that span the spectrum that is the business of teaching. From teachers' salaries to snow-days, the Board renders discernment.

To this group of fine Troy citizens, we are grateful for their shaping of our education.

Co-ordinators

The nine coordinators of the Troy High School District are continuously scrutinizing curricula, making new suggestions, and checking every facet of their departments in order to provide the finest and most valuable instruction.

Coordinators are: Mr. Boettger — Occupational and Career Education, Mrs. Burkhart — Language Arts, Mr. Carman — Social Studies, Mr. Cooley — Health, Physical Education, Recreation, and Safety, Mr. Hepp — Pupil Personnel Services, Mr. Levenstein — Science and Mathematics, Mr. Yeomons — Audio Visual, and Mr. Zaffuts and Miss Miller — Art and Music.

MR. ARMAND REO

Mr. Armand Reo is not only our principal, but also our guide. His aim in directing students through this four year world is to help each to fulfill the goal of "becoming all he is capable of being."

Certainly, in this man, our defeats were his defeats and our victories his victories.

For his strength and leadership we are thankful. Moreover, for his help in setting us on the path of achievement, we are grateful.

Office Staff

Typing, organizing, and distributing the printed sources of Troy High School, keeping track of attendance, and always being busy, is the daily life of the office staff.

A line of traffic tramps into the office. The students enter to ask questions, pick up late passes, complain, and submit announcements. The teachers enter each day to sign in, pick up their mail, and chat. A staff that is able to work amid this confusion deserves everybody's praise and admiration.

Library

Lending books, providing copies of scientific articles, periodicals, and diverse magazines are all part of the irreplaceable job of the Troy High School library. Fiction, non-fiction, plays, poetry, biographies and reference books line the shelves. The Library Club members help organize these shelves and also keep the library cheerful with their creative bulletin boards. Records, tapes, and films are available for use in the Media Center. The quiet atmosphere present provides an area for studying and also houses the computer terminal.

Guidance

By planning the "perfect" schedule for each student, the Guidance Department increases the student's awareness of courses needed for college entrance or job hunting.

The work-study program enables students to have a job which is related to the courses they are taking. Credits are received for the work as well as the school courses.

Guidance counselors become involved with students on a one to one basis. They inform seniors of the P.S.A.T.'s and S.A.T.'s and talk to seniors about college applications. Troy High is fortunate to have such devoted individuals to guide us through hectic days.

Commercial

Today's student wants and desperately needs practical skills for a real world. Such is provided by Troy High's Commercial Department.

Our society revolves around trade and business. Accordingly, courses such as business law, shorthand, accounting, data processing, and typing are invaluable. These subjects make the successful businessman or businesswoman.

Foreign Language

Nihil difficile est amanti!! Thusly, the pursuit of an understanding of foreign language has its own special appeal. Whether it be to read great masterpieces in the original, or to be able to converse on foreign shores, a student of the foreign languages garners an overall ability in improved communication.

Perhaps the greatest achievement of the student linguist is the appreciation, understanding, and respect for foreign cultures. Although there are differences from culture to culture, there are many ideas universal to them all. The language department, therefore, teaches social understanding.

Audio-Visual

"When you hear the beep change the frame. Encyclopedia Britannica Films proudly presents . . ."

The above are some of the sights and sounds made possible by the A-V Department. Mr. Michael Monte and his crew of able student technicians maintain and operate the multi-media equipment in the school. They also feed a non-ending stream of paper into that demi-god of the twentieth century, the XEROX machine.

The A-V department helps every department in the school make use of the many new methods in education that utilize audio-visual materials.

History

History is that branch of education that deals with the unique union of Providence, progress, conflicts, and the intellect that makes an event. Knowledgeable teachers, armed with Fenton, Roselle, and Bailey, give lessons on the famous and the infamous; the great and the lowly; the "isms"; and the problems of the ancients and the problems of today; in all trying to teach for the future based on the accomplishments and failures of the past. Anthropology, geography, political science, the history of art and music, law, and philosophy: this department does it all. By attempting to recapture yesterday, we are better ready to meet tomorrow.

Art

Expression is an intangible goal man has sought throughout his existence. Aided by the divine spark of his soul, man attempts to reproduce the image in his mind's eye. This is immortal art.

Whether it be on canvas, in clay, in marble, or in gold, art serves as a medium for communicating man's inner thoughts.

These high ideals are upheld in the Troy High Art Department. Teaching students to express their creativity with feeling and perception, is the goal of this department and its fine faculty.

Music

Both instrumental and vocal instruction are offered at Troy High School. Folk, jazz, rock, and electronic music are all options for the future musician. The Concert Band is conducted by Mr. Kane, while Miss Miller leads the Concert Choir, Glee Club, and Ninth Grade Choir.

When the Middle School was built, an intermediate music area came into existence. Special practice rooms are open to student use — mirrors and all! The W. Kenneth Doyle auditorium has begun to house Troy High concerts. Unique lighting and other special effects have been put to use in this well-equipped auditorium.

At the Christmas Concert, the Pops Concert, and the Spring Concert Troy High students perform and show the skills they have been taught to all who attend. Rewards such as scholarships, achievement awards, and membership in All-County and All-State band and choirs, are given to outstanding music students.

Science

Science and Man's search for the answers to the puzzles of today and the intrigues of tomorrow are one and the same. Whether it be exploration in outer space, on the Earth, in the oceans, or, within the limits of the innerspace of Man's own mind and body, science provides a method to solve problems and learn the truth.

Troy High's Science Department begins the preparation and establishes the foundation upon which the future's biologists, chemists, physicists, geologists, and astronomers will seek to unravel the mysteries of the universe. But science is not cold facts and harshness. The faculty of the Science Department teach an appreciation and respect for Nature and the order of things. If anything, science provides a focal point from which we can view our small place in the ever--expanding Universe.

Home Economics

Cooking, sewing, child care, and the good qualities of homemaking and management, are all taught in the Home Economics Department. Bachelor training, consumer buying, family living, hygiene, interior decoration, nutrition and social relationships are important courses which teach the vital elements of the homemaker's role while giving individuals self-confidence.

Industrial Arts

The goal of all education is to prepare students for life and career. This is especially true of the Industrial Arts Department.

Industrial Arts' courses provide the opportunity for students to acquire skills, woodworking, printing, and metal working. The practical ability acquired can be used to secure a job or pursue a hobby. It is especially adaptable to meet daily problems.

"But do you live here?" asked the Troy High students.

In unison the Algebra, Geometry, Trigonometry, and Calculus, replied, "Yes we do. We live in this land of real and imaginary, of equality and inequality, and of true and false. In our land the sine, cosine, and tangent flourish; great teachers like Newton, Leibnitz, and Descartes light the way."

So it is in the Mathematics Department. Led by stalwart guides, we venture into this land of endless adventure. We emerge prepared for an ever-changing technological society of our own.

Special Education

Our society is guilty of perpetrating a great crime. It goes by the name of stereotyping and it is a child of ignorance. To arbitrarily assign the label handicapped or retarded to any member of society is a denial of the ability of an individual to overcome the greatest of obstacles.

Special Education is Troy High School's response to this problem. The staff of this department provides its students with the greatest of gifts: understanding and patience. The result is an unsurpassed accomplishment: to help fellow humans to be self-dependent and take their rightful place in society.

Health Office

A registered nurse, a secretary, and a doctor are engaged to fulfill the everyday tasks allotted to the health office. The health office staff urges students to be vaccinated, aids students injured during gym and sport practices, checks out passes and helps the handicapped students. Filling out accident reports and dealing with first-aid emergencies are common practices of the diligent medical staff.

English

An inner feeling that emanates from the heart and a need to communicate are translated into prose and poetry: this is language, the writer's art. Lectures bring to life MACBETH, ROMEO AND JULIET, SIDDHARTHA, and JANE EYRE. Themes teach, chastise, entertain, and most of all provoke reflection. These are the impressions elicited by the study of English.

We learn of the "sound and the fury" of the classics, Strunk, and the two steams that feed Western literature. Above all we learn to think and appreciate the timelessness of masterpieces. Sensitivity is the watchword of the faculty of the English Department.

BELOW: SEATED: Miss Franceen Lanzillo, and Mrs. Frances Hartigan. STANDING: Mr. Richard Spataro, Mr. Daniel Berical, and Mr. Joseph O'Brien.

Physical Education

Troy High School's Physical Education Department is well developed and offers students a wide variety of sports from which to choose. Swimming, volleyball, weight-lifting, soccer, basketball, running, and badminton are all offered at different times of the year. The school year is divided into several mini-terms and students pick a class which they like. Co-ed classes and more involvement has resulted from this new system.

All gym and swimming classes serve as a break from our academic classes. Health classes inform students about basic cleanliness habits as well as discussing drugs, mental health, and diseases in depth.

BELOW: Mr. William Schnellbaecher, Miss Paulette Goly, Miss Sally George, Mr. Charles Boland

Vocational

The pursuit of an understanding of occupational and mechanical abilities is an increasingly important one. As our everyday life becomes more dependent on technology, a student with a comprehension of mechanization possesses extremely valuable skills. To enter the job market prepared for a trade such as automotive repairs, electronics, building, or carpentry is the goal of a vocational education. The faculty of Troy High's Vocational Department teaches, above all, pride in workmanship.

Thank You!

The Senior Class Advisors, with fortitude, tenacity, and special care led the graduating class through the hectic trials and tribulations of magazine sales, class rings, the Dardanian, and finally commencement. These members of the faculty prove each year their dedication to insure the joys that accompany senior status.

How could we have done it without them? Assuredly, as we receive our diplomas and every time we open our yearbooks, a special prayer of thanks and good wishes will go out from our hearts to each of you: Miss Lewis, Mr. Cooper, Miss Lanzillo, and Mr. Morelli.

The "Behind the Scenes" Team

The Senior Executive Board makes decisions in order to organize the social and financial affairs of the senior class. As graduation approaches, the Exec. Board takes on increasingly important responsibilities. Under the careful guidance of Miss Lewis, the board decides on graduation announcements, caps and gowns, and helps in graduation rehearsals. This group of dependable individuals aim to make graduation a success.

Dardanian Solicits Ads

Headed by Gary Valenti and Business Manager Beth Bevevino, the Ad Board met the set goal. Ad Board members were assigned specific businesses which had patronized DARDANIAN before, while the remaining seniors tried to procure ads from businesses throughout the area. Patiently collecting and organizing the ads and continuously encouraging the senior class, Beth and Gary got the job done and quite successfully.

BELOW: Gary Valenti, Ad Board Chairman, Beth Bevevino, DARDANIAN Business Manager.

Senior Class Soars

Our class officers were our leaders, but much more they were our friends. Under the direction of President Aaron Baum, the Class of '78 waded its way through magazine sales, ring sales, and the ad drive to ascend to new heights. Kelly Denin, Debbie Powers, and Michele Fobare divided the work load and helped us to reach our goals. Class officers combined personality, tenacity, and a doubtless will to lead us to a successful graduation.

With the passing of each day, we encounter experiences that are difficult to understand. Often, however, it is not ours to judge the fairness of, or question an occurrence. With the death of Paul Miller, we met with a bitter truth of adulthood: the passing-on of a friend. As long as Paul exists in our memories, the indelible impression he made on this world will not fade. If we acknowledge the transience of our own lives we can better appreciate each other and retain thoughts of Paul and the times we spent together.

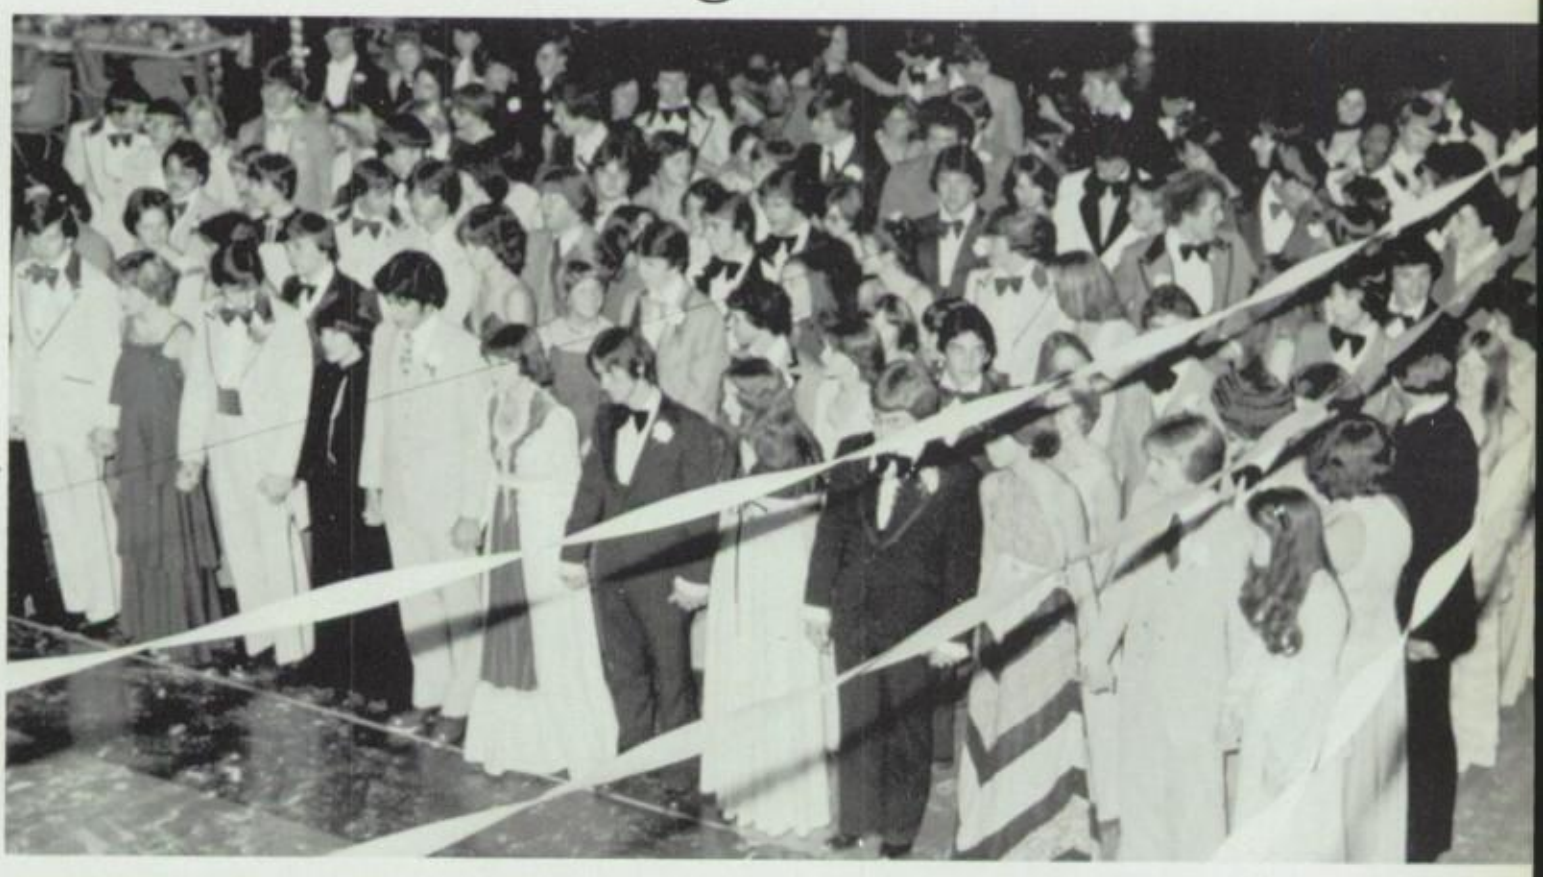
We've Only Just Begun



How does one record, with truthfulness and faith, the formation of a distinct group of individuals, the Troy High School Graduating Class of 1978? To look back on the times of pain and pleasure we have known is a bittersweet endeavor. Nevertheless, with inspiration, a seed germinates in a human mind and a saga of determination and destiny unfolds. With your permission, dear reader, I begin.

A FRESHMAN WET BEHIND THE EARS

Our odyssey began on that first half-day of classes when a hollow blowing sound entered our homerooms and a voice proceeded to speak from a public address system. "Good morning, good morning! Will you stand for the Pledge of Allegiance, and remain standing for a moment of silent meditation." Little did we know at the time that these words would greet us every morning for the next four years.

We embarked upon our classes with mixed emotions. Behind any corner, an upperclassman might lurk waiting to haze an unsuspecting one of us. Yet our greatest challenges still remained. We had to cope with a confusing system of class rotation, a new house system, and new course work.

Can you remember thinking: "Well if this is Tuesday, and third period, then I must be in algebra class, right?"

Whereupon a rather vocal response of "Wrong!" was elicited from an unknown teacher at the front of the room.

Our Freshman Year began with what could be considered each person's search for himself. As we made new friends, we progressed socially, while increasing our "intellectual capacities" via the textbook and test routine.

Finally June came and exams loomed larger than life. Having successfully passed, we cleared the first hurdle, and were on our way to becoming sophomores. Let us not forget that although we spent most of our waking hours in school, we were still being shaped by the events in the world at large. The United States finally pulled out of Viet Nam, ending an era of bitter fighting in an unpopular war. The Watergate scandal tested our justice system, resulting in the conviction and sentencing of many former government officials.

In sports, Péle signed with the New York Cosmos and heralded the rise of the popularity of soccer in the U.S. "The Juice," O. J. Simpson, chalked up the record for the most touchdowns in a season.

Finally in the field of entertainment Elton John's "Captain Fantastic" album topped the charts for twelve weeks, while The Bay City Rollers emerged on the rock scene.

STRIVING SOPHOMORES

No longer rookies, we had seen one year at Troy High and we were eager to renew acquaintances and pursue second year course work.

Class periods stopped rotating, and homeroom, instead of coming first thing in the morning, came after third period. The ninth class cut brought the risk of suspension from school. Teachers declared "work-to-rule."

School work was accompanied by a change in social status. This was the year of "sweet sixteens" and class six drivers' licenses. Friendships took on new depth and meaning.

If anything, we were envious of the juniors, but wary of becoming upperclassmen. As veterans, we confronted finals with the idea of going for the grade. Our transitional sophomore year was over and the appeal of upperclass life started to take effect.

Outside of school, this was the year of the Bicentennial. Everything was red, white, and blue. One-minute commercials on T.V. taught daily history lessons. The impressive Tall ships came to New York Harbor and fireworks signalled years past and years to come.

Bruce Jenner won the Olympic gold in the Decathlon and Nadia Comaneci demonstrated perfection in gymnastics.

Saul Bellow, the U.S. novelist, won the Nobel Prize for Literature, while "All the President's Men" and "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" won in the box office.

Daryl Hall and John Oates dominated popular music.

A JUNIOR RINGS IN

Changes ? Changes !

We returned to school confronted by many variations in what we thought was the status quo.

A new middle school sprang up next-door. We had a new superintendent of schools, Mr. Anthony J. Murray. Yet the alteration of the tallest order was a new principal.

Mr. Enfanto retired after 18 years as Troy High principal. His successor, Mr. Armand Reo, was unknown to most of us. In time, though, we learned to fear, respect, and appreciate him.

We weren't seniors yet, but we had to start preparing. Magazine sales brought out the businessman in each of us as homerooms competed for that coveted stuffed panda bear.

"Should I get a cut-stone in silver, or a Fireburst in a gold setting?" The purchase of a class ring called for a clear head. Later on in the year, after having been turned 78 times on one's finger, the ring became a prized possession and status symbol.

These were the times of third year courses and college boards. We were challenged by tests whose acronyms confused us and whose results would determine our college fate. PSATs, SATs, and ACTs made us painfully aware of the competition in college admission.

Themed, "Color My World," the Junior Prom proved that formal attire and behavior really did have appeal.

Our class officers saw the results of their hard work. A successful Junior Prom was an important experience that bound us together as a separate class.

The Music Man was the year's theatrical production, being the first to grace the new Middle School auditorium stage.

Overall our Junior year was one of excitement and personal growth. We took the responsibility and cherished the privileges of young adults. We were ready to move on and become seniors.

As adults, current events in the world had greater importance in our lives. A new President, Jimmy Carter, occupied the Oval Office. Problems of energy and the economy plagued the new administration.

Snow covered everything in record amounts. Buffalo had to dig houses and cars out of the white blanket.

In sports, Steve Cauthen wowed us, and reinforced the idea that America loves a winner, while Oakland showed us skill and teamwork at the Eleventh Super Bowl.

SENIOR YEAR:
LAUGHTER AND TEARS.

As for the future, we looked toward college, but we didn't lose sight of our concluding year.

To describe us as a class, one would have to say we were optimistic toward the future and ourselves. At the same time we cherished the past and looked forward to knowing better and not making the same mistakes again.

Hall of Fame, Senior Prom, the Yearbook, and Graduation all took form and became reality.

Somehow, though, a question still remained with us. "Is this the end? Are we being told 'That's All Folks'? . . . Maybe there's more?"

Then we would open our yearbooks and gaze at our diplomas and realize that, in truth, as long as we treasured our memories the past could be as real as the present. Our high school years would never be forgotten.

We were now full-fledged members of the adult world. More than ever, we savored the happenings around us.

We saw Anwar Sadat, President of Egypt, travel to Israel. Jimmy Carter proved to us that a President could be a 'down-to-earth' fellow.

The Yankees, led by Reggie Jackson, ran away with the World Series. And the Dallas Cowboys put the upstart Denver Broncos in their place in the Super Bowl.

"Star Wars" and "Close Encounters of the Third Kind" helped us leave the movie theater and escape into the future and outer space.

These are but glimpses of the past, dear reader. The entire story is locked in the hearts and minds of the people who made up the Class of '78. High school was a two-way street: it left its impression on the graduating class, and the class left its indelible mark on the school.

In previous years Regents Scholarship were awarded on the basis of performance on the Regents Scholarship Examination. The year 1977-1978, however, brought a great change to the selection process. SAT's scores were now used to determine the winners.

What did the students think? Well, it added an extra burden to an already extremely important test; yet it did away with another time-consuming examination. Competition was tough but T.H.S. did well with forty winners and alternates.

ALTERNATES — T. Koshgarian, K. Cardish. WINNER: D. Bryce.

Elected by their fellow classmates, the junior class officers have the responsibility of organizing magazine and ring sales, and the junior prom.

Juniors, if there is any advice we would give you, it would be this: Troy High is a good school, live every day you are in school to the fullest, and hold on to those memories. Your senior year is just around the corner.

What goes into the preparation of a yearbook? Perhaps, more than anything else, it takes courage; courage to take the responsibility to accurately capture the impact of a class on its school.

The 1978 Dardanian staff matured as their senior year progressed. They braved long meetings, waterfalls, and pizzas, saving their tears and laughter for that day when they could proudly look upon their publication and know that all the hard work truly had paid off.

The union of sensitivity and a stiff upper lip (especially before deadlines) embodied in the editorial staff, permitted the hopes, fears and dreams of the Graduating Class of 1978 to be reflected in the 1978 Dardanian.

Troy High "Bookies"

Organizing the numerous book shelves, creating bulletin boards, and obtaining requested periodicals are jobs which the members of Library Club regularly perform. During their free periods or after school, members organize the card catalogs and check out books for fellow students.

Bake sales and an annual banquet highlight the year. Being a member of this club is a fun as well as an educational experience.

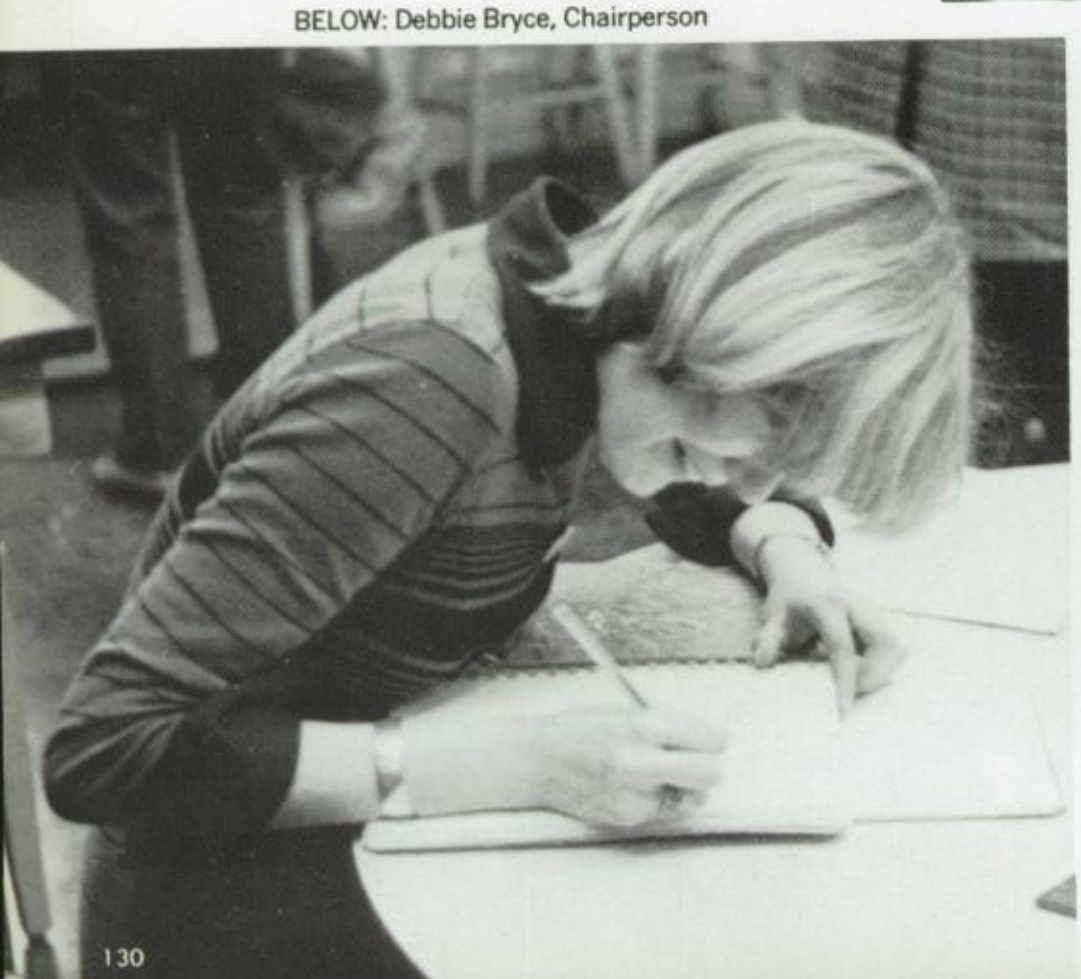
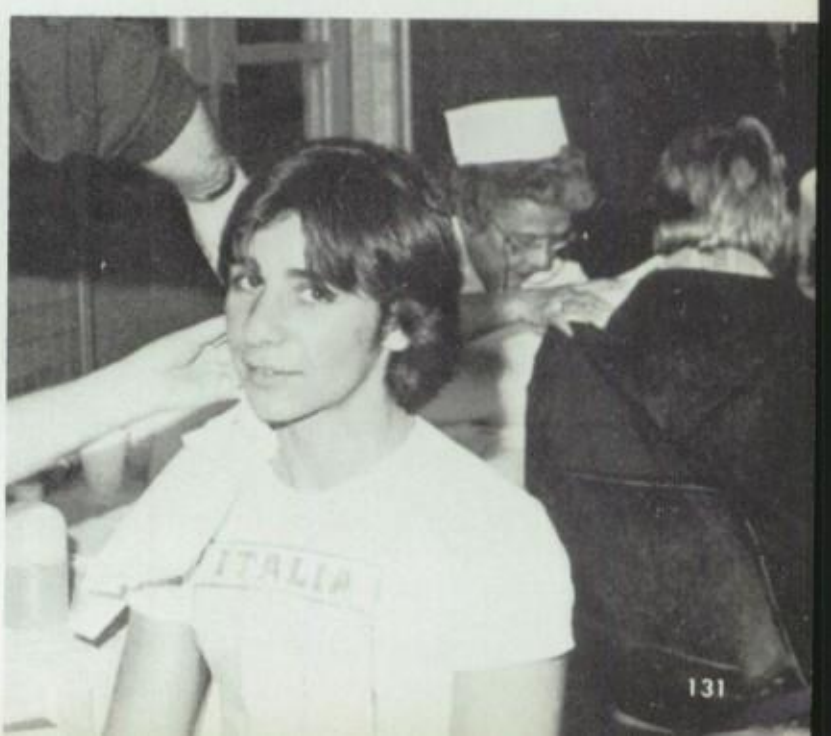
Bloood!

BELOW: Debbie Bryce, Chairperson



The Senior Executive Board, class advisors, and co-chairpersons Debbie Bryce and Charlotte Passaretti successfully organized Troy High's sixth annual bloodmobile. The co-chairpersons contacted the Red Cross, made advance speeches over the P.A., recruited donors, and drew up time schedules, as well as scrubbed cafeteria tables spotless the day before this important event!

The donors who contributed to the one hundred and ten pints were, for the most part, Troy High students. All donors felt relief when their turn to give was over and they were escorted to the cookie and juice table.



Le Cercle Français

Meeting once a month on Thursdays, the French Club members try to widen their knowledge of the French language and culture. Activities of the French Club include French skits, candle sales, and bake sales.

An annual trip to Canada is usually made in the spring. Being confronted with native French-speaking people is quite an experience — especially when one forgets the French word for bathroom!

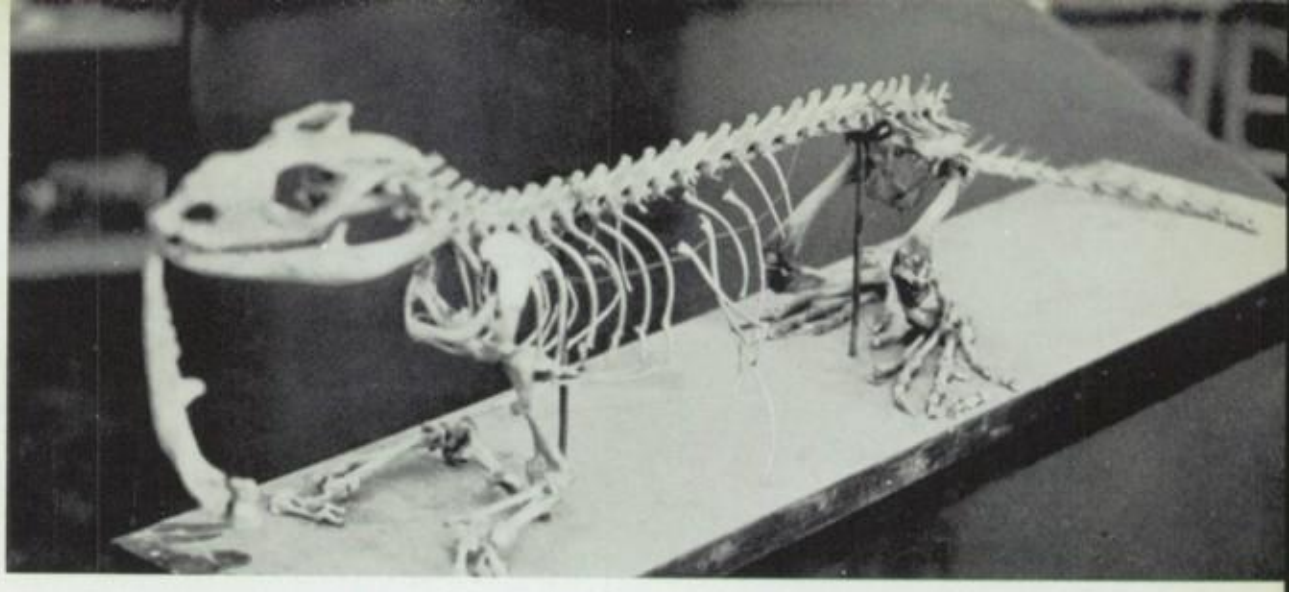
Spirited Experimenters!



This group of scientifically-inclined individuals gather on a regular basis to discuss current topics in science and mathematics. The culmination of the year's activities is a trip to Boston, known to its members as the Boston Binge. Mrs. Cooper inspires these free thinking individuals to pursue club activities independently making for fine learning habits.

Checkmate!

Although the Chess Club doesn't meet regularly, this group of intelligent students possesses an understanding of the more complicated moves of chess. In the beginning of the school year a North Eastern Interscholastic Chess League Tournament, sponsored by the U.S. Chess Federation, was held at Troy High. The Troy High School Chess Club finished with a respectable second place. In March, a similar tournament was held at the Scotia-Glenville High School.

"Current" Events

The Synchronized Swim Club is a creative outlet as well as a source of exercise and fun. Members choreograph, teach, and direct their numbers.

Practicing weekly, attending grueling all-day Saturday rehearsals, and pulling off wet leotards and tights are characteristics of the Synchronized Swim Club. An annual show is presented by the "mermaids" each year.

"Point of Order"

Student Council is the representative group of the student body. Perhaps parliamentary procedure is not practiced exactly, but accomplishments are achieved. The Council raises money for worthy charities, runs the concession stands at basketball games, and sponsors dances. Council members gain invaluable experience in bureaucratic procedure, and serve the entire school. Tomorrow's Daniel Websters and John Calhouns learn oratory in Council meetings.

Ars Gratia Artis

Troy High's literary magazine, Serendipity, is a medium in which students may express their creativity. Mr. Berical advises the group of students who edit, type, and arrange the format of Serendipity.

The Club With Class[ics]

Garnering the many pearls of wisdom given by their mentor, Mr. Gibson, is an important part of Toga Club activities. Aspects of Greek and Roman culture, that are not taken up in class, are pursued at club meetings. Lectures, films, and discussions are regular activities.

Work-study students have the good fortune of learning and making money at the same time. Under the auspices of the Troy High School Guidance Department, these pupils receive invaluable experience in the money-making world.

Fabulous Flicksters

Troy High's Student technicians serve one of the most important functions in daily teaching: They operate and maintain audio-visual equipment. Not only do these students learn of the technical aspects of the modern media, but they also develop special qualities of patience which help them to resist kicking a non-working machine. Abuseproof, the student technicians perform their activities with a special flair.

We Don't Cry Over Spilt Paint!

In the Troy High cafeteria yards of drawings, scattered paint cans, and drippy paintbrushes are common sights. Out of this chaos of color and motion come the Art Staff's perfected prom scenes. Divided into the Junior Art Staff, which works on the Junior Prom held in May, and the Senior Art Staff, which is in charge of the wintery Senior Prom decorations, the Art Staff is a group of talented and dedicated students.

The Big T's

One of the largest clubs in Troy High, the Varsity Club, consists of all sudents who have earned a varsity letter. Running the football concession stand and putting on the annual spring banquet are the club's main functions. Back on the Track

Finishing fourth in the Big 10 Championship, the Varsity Boys Indoor Track team demonstrated the winning ways of Troy High athletics. Solid performances throughout the season were given by Zaffuts in the mile, and the 1000 yard dash; Hempstead in the high hurdles, Golden in the high jump, Dickson in the mile walk, and McLoughlin in the 880 run. The girls team also finished fourth in the Big 10 supported by the achievements of Arekian in the 60 yard dash and Edmonds in the mile relay. Laurels are extended to these teams and their coaches: Cepiel, Leforestier, and Fitzpatrick.

Girls Run On

The Troy High girls track team completed a rebuilding season with some fine efforts and a 2-7 record. Under the direction of Miss Love, the team gained valuable experience and left the blocks on its way to new strength.

The momentum gained from experience and upperclassmen should lead the team to cross the finish line in record time next season.

Football Fumbles

The football season proved to be a baffling one for the Trojan Gridders. Despite strong efforts by DeSano, Hughley, and Tri-Captains Chonski, Carroll, and Zotto, the team had difficulty scoring the winning touchdown.

The opening game found the Trojans on the offensive with a crushing shutout of Lansingburgh. For the remainder of the season Troy tried to combine its running and passing for points but victory proved elusive. The season ended with a 1-8 record overall.

Hat Trick Hustlers

Under the guidance of Coaches DelVecchio and Case, the hockey team checked its way to a 5-12 season. An impressive record of saves was made by Doug Marchese, Troy High's own Phil Esposito. Aided by co-captains Lamiano and Katchmar, the team faced and conquered rivals such as Albany Academy and LaSalle. Troy Hockey, moreover, shined with a Rome Tournament Victory.

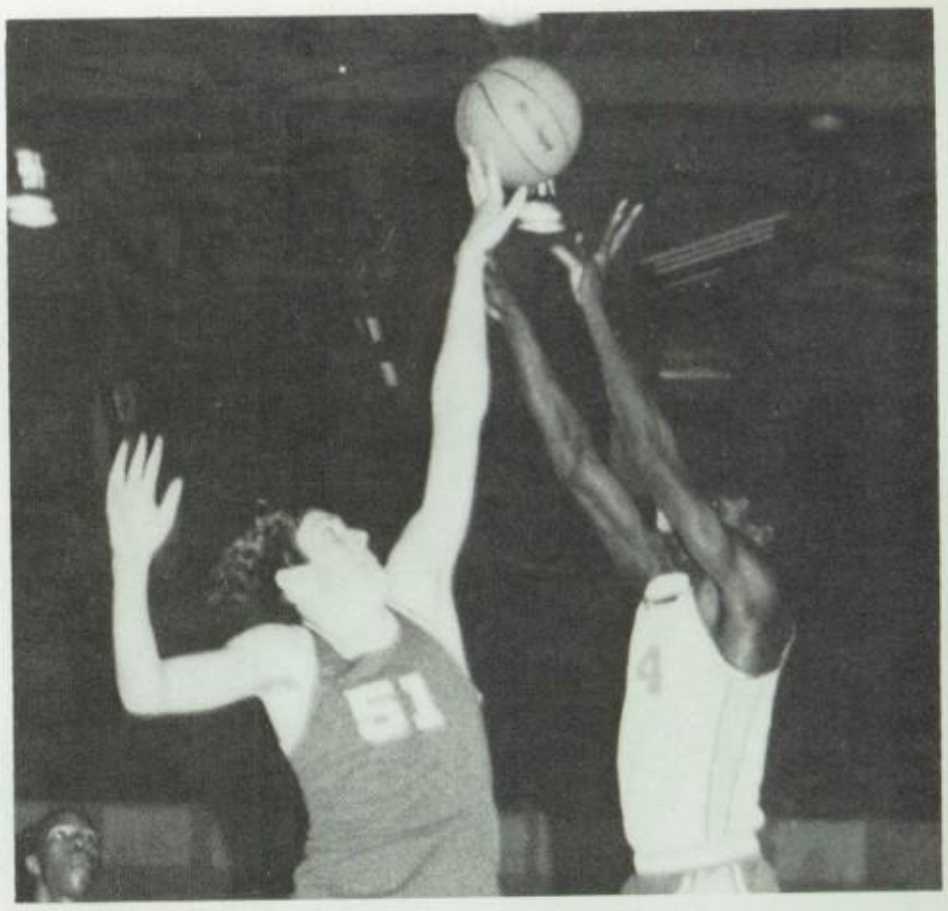
"Nobody Does It Better?"



Somehow the combination of initiative, ability, and team spirit was not in the right proportion. Troy High Basketball came close, but it was no cigar for all but one game of the season.

Granted, the adage: "It's not whether you win or lose; it's how you play the game," doesn't lead a team to the championship, but when a devoted team improves over a season, the challenge of competitive athletics has been met. Shining aspects of this year's play included Gary Nicoll's 15.4 point per game average and fine performances by Terry Tucker and Ed Valentine.

Volleyers Vanquish

Throughout November and December, the 1977 girls' volleyball team played tough teams such as Bishop MaGinn, Linton, and Mont Pleasant. Seniors Terri Warren and Cuemi Gibson led the squad to a final record of 9 wins 7 losses. Other team members were Karen Avossa, Gloria Dickson, Stephanie Hoenig, Mary Stewart, and Mara Wager. Coach Berberich skillfully welded the players into a cohesive unit.

Returning seniors Janet Hasbrouck, Cindy Hemming, and Dana Francis formed the backbone of the 1978 gymnastics team. Lynn Bradley, Karen Carhart, Ginny Griner, Kitty Meharg, and Cheryl Whitney rounded out the team's membership, while Miss Love provided coaching.

Although the team practiced every day for two hours, it faced formidable competition from Niskayuna, Shenendehowa, Guilderland, and Ichabod Crane. Being defeated by Rensselaer 37.1 to 36.4 was a heartbreaker for the loyal team members.
